

Glenn Calebs Named President & CEO At First National Bank & Trust

LONDON – Randell Brewer, Chairman of the Board of Directors at First National Bank & Trust, today announced that veteran banker Thurman Glenn Calebs, Jr., has been named President and Chief Executive Officer of the London-based bank. His duties will officially begin on October 1, on the heels of former President and CEO Bob Jones’ retirement, effective September 30, 2017.

“For more than a decade, Glenn has been instrumental in our growth and prosperity,” Brewer said. “Our customers and our community will be well-served by his leadership and commitment to London and our region, for many years to come.”

Calebs, a lifelong resident of Laurel County, is a graduate of Laurel County High School. He earned his Associates of Arts degree in Business from Sue Bennett College and then completed his Bachelor of Business Administration degree in Accounting, with emphasis in Finance, from Eastern Kentucky University.

He is a graduate of the Kentucky School of Banking and a graduate of the Kentucky School of Banking Commercial Lending School. Calebs has also completed several of the OCC Banking Relations Assessment courses.

Calebs began his banking career in 1976 at London Bank & Trust Co., and has worked in a number of positions during his tenure there, including Market President. In 2006, he joined First National Bank & Trust, where he has served as Executive Vice President, Senior Lender and a member of the Board of Directors.

He currently serves on the Board of Directors for the London/Laurel County Industrial Authority and Laurel County Older Persons Activity Center. He had previously served as Board Chairman of the Laurel County Public Library.

Glenn and his wife Helen reside in Laurel County.
